• Nifty closed at 24,876.95 (+245.65 / +1.00%) after a sharp gap-up opening, but despite hitting an intraday high of 25,022, it slipped back and closed within the range of 24,600–24,900, indicating supply pressure at higher levels. RSI at 52.28 reflects a recovery in momentum, while ADX at 30.73 suggests trend strength is gradually picking up. For now, the index remains in a consolidation phase, and a decisive sustained breakout above 24,900–25,000 will be crucial to unlock the next upside towards 25,200–25,300. Until then, oscillations within the 24,600–24,900 band are likely, with 24,600 serving as immediate support. A cautious stance is warranted unless 25,000 is firmly reclaimed.

Bank Nifty closed at 55,734.90 (+393.05 / +0.71%), managing to recover from intraday lows but still facing hurdles near the short-term moving averages. The index has been consolidating around its recent support zone of 55,200–55,400, which remains a key base to watch. RSI at 47.74 indicates muted momentum, while ADX at 28.06 reflects a developing but not yet strong trend. Sustaining above 55,800–56,000 will be critical to trigger further upside towards 56,500–56,800, while inability to hold above 55,200 could drag the index back towards 54,600–54,800. For now, the structure suggests cautious optimism with a range-bound bias unless a decisive breakout above 56,000 materializes.
