

Nifty50

Closing price	R1	R2	S1	S2
24,364.85	24,500	24,800	24,100	24,000

Nifty on the higher timeframe continues to trade within a broad range of 22,000–26,000. The recent decline tested the lower band and witnessed a bounce, indicating strong demand at lower levels while supply persists near the upper zone. The index has staged a pullback and is approaching the mid-range resistance near 24,500–25,000, which also aligns with key moving averages—making it a crucial hurdle for trend reversal.

Immediate resistance is placed near 24,500–24800, while on the downside 24,100 acts as immediate support; a break below this could retest the 23500 zone.

Bank Nifty

Closing price	R1	R2	S1	S2
56,582.35	57,000	57,700	55,800	55,500

Bank Nifty has been trading within a well-defined rising channel on the higher timeframe, but the recent sharp decline has dragged the index towards the lower band, indicating weakening trend strength and risk of a breakdown if support fails. The index has seen a bounce from lower levels near 52,000, suggesting demand at the channel support. However, it still needs to reclaim higher levels to confirm trend continuation.

Immediate resistance is placed near 57,000–57,700, while on the downside 55,800 remains crucial support; a break below this could extend the fall towards 54000
